Grown up with parents in the Armed Forces?

Service Child Forum for Higher and Further Education Students

At the University of Winchester, we want to bring together students currently studying in further or higher education to share perspectives on life as a Service child on the 27th March.

The experiences of Service children are being recognised by universities and other institutions in the education sector and we want to make sure that the voices of students in higher and further education are heard. The ideas shared in our forum will be shared on local and national platforms and will help raise the profile of Service children's experiences in all stages of education. As part of the event, we're also offering an employability workshop to support you in thinking about your next steps.

ABOUT THE DAY:

- 13:30-16:30 at the University of Winchester
- Lunch and campus tours included
- Opportunity to consider your next steps with an employability workshop
- Chance to share your experiences of growing up as part of the Armed Forces community

INTERESTED?

We welcome all students who have grown up with a parent in the Armed Forces, including those whose parents may have left the Services (regardless of what age you were at that point).
